Fair peace?

Decision on an operating contract for the fairgrounds due in two weeks.

Misunderstanding

Agreement nearer on new fair pact

A misunderstanding on the period of time the County Fair board would have to retire five of the present elected members, and receiving of the completed contract language, apparently are the last hurdles to a four-year contract being agreed to by the Fair Association and County Supervisors.

Lee Hall, secretary-manager of the County Fair Association, said a special meeting would be called in the next two weeks to act on the contract proposal from the county. Language of the tentative pact is now being finalized by Roland Mayne's office at the county.

Fair directors Tuesday night put off any action on the contract pending reception of a copy. The one major difference then was the makeup of the Fair board.

Supervisors, earlier Tuesday, had approved submitting a four-year contract with terms and conditions related to affirmative action policies, payment of liability insurance premiums, employee pensions, and tenure and makeup of the board.

Schools rank in upper levels for state tests

San Ramon students near top

Statewide testing produced few startling results for Valley schools in 1976-77 the past year, according to the most recent assessment by the California Department of Education.

Though test results in reading, writing, spelling and mathematics put Valley youngsters in the upper percentages of their classes statewide, only the San Ramon Valley Unified School District ranked consistently high when compared with similar school districts.

The assessment, released yesterday, sought to show the relative strengths and weaknesses of the test scores by comparing districts with similar socio-economic backgrounds and educational histories. The mid-50 percent of test scores in similar districts were compared by "score bands," showing how they ranged statewide.

For example, San Ramon high school seniors averaged 93 in math. The math score range for similar districts statewide was 91-96, placing those seniors square in the middle of their group.

In contrast, sixth graders in the Pleasanton Joint Elementary District averaged 64 in their reading tests, below their accordance to the assessment report. However that same group scored 84 in reading, near the top of their 75-86 range.

Overall, gains outnumbered declines with most recorded changes only varying by a percentage point or less.

Livermore Valley Joint Unified School District

In Livermore schools, the reading scores of 2nd and 3rd graders dropped markedly however, six and five points respectively, but still placing them in the upper third of students tested at that grade level. The sixth graders were tested in four subjects and registered declines in all but spelling which remained at the 1975-76 level of 66.4.

Twelfth graders increased their math and spelling scores slightly to 70.5 and 70.9, but declined in reading and stayed unchanged in writing. All

Pollution count

A good smog year

Breathe, it's cleaner

Weather conditions were so good this year it looks like the Valley will have its cleanest smog year since 1972.

Bay Area Air Pollution Control District said this week the oxidant in the Valley air violated the federal standards of .08 parts per million only 19 days this year.

That ties the all-time low set in 1972. The district has been keeping records since 1968.

The low figure this year is the result of a cool summer and lots of breezes, said Chief Meteorologist James Sandberg. But the past few years also show a downward trend not altogether tied to weather, he said.

Such things as tighter smog standards on car and

Some Vet Day closures

Some Valley establishments will be closed today in honor of the traditional Veterans Day commemorating the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month in 1918 when World War I ended in an Armistice Day pact.

Closed today are Alameda and Contra Costa county offices, Livermore city government, schools and school district offices, and the Pleasanton and Amador Joint School District offices and schools.

Open will be Pleasanton city government, Valley Community Services District offices, and San Ramon Valley schools and school district offices. They celebrated Veterans Day in October.

Pledges support

Stark praises Heritage Center

DUBLIN — Congressman Fortney "Pete" Stark (D-Oakland) has given an official nod of approval to the Dublin Historical Preservation Association (DHPA) Heritage Center.

"We'll try and help where we can," Stark declared yesterday while touring the Heritage Center.

The Heritage Center is sponsored by DHPA. It is located at 6600 Donlon Way in Dublin. At the Center, DHPA is dedicated to preserving local history.

"I think preserving places like this is exciting," Stark added. "There is so much stucco sprawl something like the Heritage Center is very worthwhile. It gives the community a sense of permanence plus a sense of where the community came from."

Marie Cronin, director of Heritage Center, asked Stark if he would help obtain available funding for the Center from various governmental sources. Stark agreed to do what he could.

Cronin said the Center was especially interested in asking for money from Housing Urban Development (HUD) which would come out of Community Development funds designated for unincorporated areas of Alameda County.

Cronin explained such funding would help the Center provide better services for handicapped and elderly.

Center improvements slated to provide such specialized service include a ramp and automatic door opener, adaptation of existing bathroom facilities, putting up street and path lights, constructing a hard-surface entrance path suitable for wheelchair use, fire protection equipment plus an alarm system and weatherproofing of the historic

Las Trampas hiker hurt, airlifted out

SAN RAMON — A 16-year-old youth mountain-climbing in Las Trampas Regional Park fell 40 feet down a hillside in rough terrain yesterday afternoon and had to be airlifted to a hospital for treatment of possible back injuries.

An East Bay Regional Park District spokesman said the youth was climbing with a group of people when he stumbled down an embankment in the Eagle Peak area.

The park district's helicopter, Eagle II, rushed in and airlifted the youth to John Muir Hospital in Walnut Creek. He was listed in stable condition and was being held for observation.

Some obese persons benefit from close contact with others in the same boat. That's where organizations such as Weight Watchers, Overeaters Anonymous or TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly) can help.

Most experts say that it still comes down to that bottom line — eat less. With other factors remain eventually mean lost pounds.

Increased levels of exercise can have the same net effect in achieving weight loss, but the recommendation is still the same: A sudden surge of physical activity can wreak havoc on an out-of-shape body as can a radical change of diet, so a doctor should be contacted first.

More, pg. 10

The battle against fat

The battle to control those extra pounds is usually a frustrating experience, especially as one gets older.

The use of pre-digested liquid protein, recently touted as one route to a new shape, has been accused by the federal Food and Drug Administration of possibly contributing to the deaths of 16 women who had used the substance.

Trudy Morgan, a nurse at San Ramon's Family Medical Center of Valley Memorial Hospital, advises persons considering a major change in diet to undergo a complete physical first.

Most persons will admit the problem stems from overeating but many don't know how to properly regulate their eating, she says.

But each person is different in terms of physical make-up, eating habits, and physical activity, which makes it difficult to generalize about how to go about dieting. That's why it's important to first contact a physician.

Two problems left with negotiations

Their has been uncertainty, from the Fair Association standpoint, as to whether the makeup question would be part of the contract language or policy, separate from the pact. Supervisor Valerie Raymond reiterated yesterday that makeup of the board is policy and not included in contract language.

But Fair directors and administration apparently thought that retiring of five of the present 16 elected directors would have to occur within the proposed four-year contract period. Raymond said, as has been previously stated, the dropping of five presently elected members must take place within a five-year period.

The board would be permitted to elect two new members and Supervisors will each gain an additional appointee. No specific time schedule has been worked out for the requested resignations and new appointments.

But, though the board strength could go from the present 21 maximum to 26 at any time in the next five years, the ultimate "cap" will be 23—13 elected by the board and 10 appointed by Supervisors.

Mrs. Raymond indicated she has a choice for her second appointee in mind and hinted it could be a woman associated with 4-H activities in the Valley.

It was also noted that at least one present elected member, who has served for more than two decades, will be resigning soon as he reportedly is moving out of the county.

Volunteer unit gets new home

PLEASANTON — The Valley Volunteer Bureau no longer faces the disheartening prospect of being out on the streets December 1, when the city takes over the YMCA building and moves or demolishes it to accommodate the extension of Peters Avenue.

Planning commissioners approved this week a conditional use permit allowing the volunteers to relocate in the police training building on Kottinger Drive.

Due to that action, the agency can stay in Pleasanton. The YMCA is moving to Livermore because the extension.

Parking at the police training building is limited, thus commissioners granted the permit for only one year. Commissioners said they will re-issue the permit if staff indicates the volunteer bureau created no parking problem during the initial year.

High school tests poor

Test scores of California high school seniors fell further behind national averages in English and mathematics last year, the state board of education was told yesterday.

But 2nd and 3rd graders' scores, already slightly above the national average due to a concentrated effort in those grades in the last few years, continued to rise slowly.

California students made their worst showing on the English tests for high school seniors, cancelling modest gains made in 1975-76.

"California students continued to do most poorly in language skills," concluded the California Assessment Program report which evaluated the statewide tests.

The average score of the 243,137 high school seniors tested was 63.9 which placed it in the 33rd percentile nationwide and meant 67 percent of the nation's children did better than the California average.

"What frightens me is to have so many students scoring that low," said Alexander Law, head of the state's testing program.

Measured against national averages, California students fell short in three subjects, hitting the 42nd percentile in reading, the 33rd percentile in English usage and the 43rd in mathematics.

In contrast, students in the 2nd, 3rd and 6th grades showed slight improvements in most areas. The 2nd and 3rd graders moved up to the 51st percentile in English usage, mathematics up to the 51st and stayed at the 53rd percentile in reading. Both gains were increases of one one percentile.

Children did better than the California average. "What frightens me is to have so many students scoring that low," said Alexander Law, head of the state's testing program.

Transit gift for the elderly

LIVERMORE — Thanks to the hard work of the Livermore Jaycees, senior citizens now will have transportation to the Senior Service Center at 8th and H Streets.

The brightly painted van will hold 12 passengers and has such extras as air conditioning, automatic transmission and AM radio.

Jaycees promoted a series of money-making projects to get the van, at a cost of about $8,000, and designated the color scheme of dark metallic brown and cream. "Senior Van" blends into the color and designates it for its special use.

Jaycees gave the van to LARPD, who will now maintain it, pay for gas and insurance as well as drive the van to pick up senior citizens for trips to the specialized clinics offered at the center.

Dirt gets in the air

truck engines and the fume recovery nozzles at gas stations apparently have made some dent in the air quality, said Sandberg.

The downward trend can be seen by a look at the figures for oxidant over the past 10 years. In 1968 there were 96 days over the standards. After that the figures read: 1969, 110 days (the worst year, with many hot days and little wind circulation); 1970, 67 days; 1971, 41; 1972, 19; 1973, 55; 1974, 65; 1975, 28; 1976, 29; and 1977, 19 to date.

The smog season ends officially on Oct. 31, though it's possible that prior to Nov. 15 there could be another smoggy day or two that would violate the standards.

Livermore continues to be the highest violator among the 32 Bay Area sampling stations when it comes to suspended particulates. These basically are the specks of dirt in the air, whether caused by smog emissions or just plain dirt. Since the Valley is agricultural, it's not surprising to find a high count here, said Sandberg.

In addition, there is a dirt parking lot next to the BAAPCD sampling station in Livermore and it's Sandberg's theory that cars kicking up dust there add more than their rightful share to the meters just a few yards away.

Cronin said $15,500 is a proposed figure for installing these improvements plus others that will become necessary in the future.

She added that volunteer assistance has helped keep down costs involving the entire Center project.

"But we can still use volunteer help," she pointed out.

She said youth and men's groups often volunteer as part of their community project programs.

Clear zone aid dim at airport

LIVERMORE — It looks like Livermore Airport will not be getting the grants to purchase the land for East Clear Zone and South Approach Protection this fiscal year.

But the FAA says both acquisitions have high priorities and should be in a favorable position next year.

That's the sum of the report the Airport Advisory Committee will hear at its noon luncheon Monday at the Red Baron Restaurant.

The airport had hoped to acquire 108 acres for the East Clear Zone and 110 acres for the South Approach Protection. But the money allocated by Congress for General Aviation Airports for the fiscal year starting the first of this month was very small, according to the FAA.

However, they did note that some possibility still exists that the East Clear Zone purchase could be authorized late in the fiscal year if the other projects do not proceed on schedule, Public Works Director Dan Lee explained.

In other business, the advisory committee will receive figures comparing Livermore's cost of insurance requirements as compared to five other airports, ranging from Hollister, which has a similar insurance coverage, to Reno and Fresno.

"I think the survey generally shows we're favorable in our coverage," Lee said.

Lab drive to help charity

LIVERMORE — The annual HOME charity campaign at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory will benefit 25 local agencies and nearly 200 Bay Area United Way groups.

This year's HOME (Helping Others More Effectively) campaign has a goal of raising $115,000. Last year's charity drive collected $99,000, just short of its $100,000 goal.

About 30 per cent of the HOME donations goes to 25 local agencies, with the remainder distributed to the United Way.

"The HOME committee has carefully chosen a wide variety of local agencies to contribute to," said HOME committee chairman Jim Hadley of LLL. "Collectively, these agencies help many of the most needy groups."

Last year, some two dozen donation envelopes distributed to employees were returned with written comments indicating dissatisfaction that some funds go to Birthright, an organization dedicated to pregnancy counseling but opposed to abortion.

Hadley said yesterday he had not heard a single comment about Birthright, or its complementary organization, Planned Parenthood, which supplies information about abortion. Both organizations would receive $160 if the campaign's goal is reached.

This year's HOME campaign ends today.

Other groups slated to receive funds include Buenas Vidas Youth Ranch ($4,000); Livermore Senior Citizens Center ($1,000); Dublin Hotline ($1,000), and 22 other local agencies.

If the $115,000 goal is reached, $40,252 would go to the 25 local agencies, with the remaining $74,748 donated to the United Way.

Hadley said the 15 per cent increase over last year's goal was due "partly to inflation and partly to an increase in the Lab's population," which rose about 10 per cent over last year.

Jobless teens

In sizing up the mess of bills that Sacramento has authorized just to govern employers, one business leader of our acquaintance observed: "Legislators spend a great deal of time and money thinking up laws to frustrate us, and then they spend a great deal more time passing laws to bail us out of the problem which they created in the first place."

Congress seems to be shoving us into the same Catch 22. In hammering out a "minimum wage law" to govern the nation's work force, Congress insisted on including most teenaged workers in that same scale. Labor unions demanded this "in order to keep employers from hiring youngsters at less than the minimum wage."

What do you, as an employer, think of that? Next time you offer a 14-year-old $2 to wash your car (provided we ever get water again) and that youngster says, "Sorry, the minimum wage is $3 for the first hour," you will likely do the job yourself, or head for the nearest car wash station. Which is just what the labor unions want.

But is it what the nation wants? And is it what is best for our young people?

The freedom to hire high school youngsters — for odd jobs, for casual summertime work, for a brief Saturday stint — has always been one of the benchmarks of the American system. Uncle Sam has reminded us of just that in recent years, with nation-wide campaigns urging employers to "hire a teen this summer!"

Now that we can't hire them (or more correctly, now that we can adults for the same minimum scale we must pay highschoolers) you can look forward to more teenagers wandering the streets, standing idly

Empty spaces

This is a frustrating occupation.

I sit at a typewriter and put words on paper. My head and hands try to fill up white space with the words on that newsprint in front of you and on this 8 by 11 sheet of paper in front of me. It is analogous to my life. I keep trying to fill the empty spaces around me with words. If no one is there to listen, I talk anyway, usually silently in my head. Sometimes I sing. But always, there are words in my head.

At times, like the demand on me to fill part of a newspaper daily, the experience of running words through my head and out my mouth is not a pleasant one. I am caught up in words too much. They are like walls of masonry I have constructed, word upon word, that cut me off from direct experience of things, people and events.

There have been a few times when I managed to suspend words. Once, while doing yoga exercises, I was lying on my back porch experiencing sounds in the environment. I was not listening, but experiencing; the two are very different. When I listen, I pick up sounds and run them through the coder-decoder in my head. But the day I was under the influence of yoga, I experienced the sounds directly in my head and innards. The yoga exercise shut off my coder-decoder. Still suspended in the wonder of direct experience of "reality," I went to a friend's house. I arrived early and sat in the beautiful garden for awhile. I was not thinking at all, even when people passed me on the garden path. I saw them for the first time without words in my head. There was no wall of "thought" between us. I experienced nature directly for the first time, feeling my surroundings instead of looking at them and filtering them through the coder-decoder.

I was reminded of the experience and my battle against words when I read an article by Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh in the October issue of East West Journal. I knew what he was talking about when he said, "People cling to words because they don't know what reality is. So they start believing in words — it is a make-believe. At least it gives a sense that you know. When you use the word 'god,' suddenly you feel as if you know god. You don't know anything about god, you only know the word 'god.' That, too, you have only heard, but it has become your foundation rock."

He is saying that one must kill the wall of words between oneself and god (or God, for Jews and Christians), if you wish to know whoever or whatever god (God) really is. Or what reality is.

It is difficult. We keep looking for various "keys" to unlock the door to reality. We say such things as, "Well, what IS the answer?" and "Your problem really is..." We keep looking for keys, but in life we don't need them because there really are no locks on the door.

Harry Houdini usually escaped from locked cells in three minutes or less. In Italy once, it took him an hour. When he got out, sweating and tired, he said, "They fooled me. There was no lock, just a hole where the lock should be, and I was trying to open a non-existent lock."

The coder-decoder in our heads tries to create keys to open non-existent locks. We invent small games with each other to pass the time. We write in newspapers, telling people "what goes on in the world." In a surface sense, perhaps we do tell what goes on in the world. But in a real sense, our words tell nothing of the kind.

Up until now the most crass commercial types operate from "boiler rooms" where batteries of solicitors, working from morning till late evenings, callously go through page after page of numbers in pursuit of their victims.

But what really has brought Senator Anderson to action is the discovery that a new automated device capable of making 1000 taped phone calls a day is being marketed for a mere $4500. The mechanical "pitchman" has been so perfected it can even take your order.

FOCUS/Court evidence

Crazy as a fox

A recent news article saying the man who held a banker hostage for 2½ days, with a gun tied to the victim's head, may be freed soon because of an insanity plea once again raises the question of whether those making the competency determinations are — shall we say — competent themselves.

There is room now to question whether the escalated releasing of persons from mental institutions, and the corollary action of pleading "diminished mental capacity," is not leading to more criminal acts being instigated by these self-same persons.

Jay Ziskin, a lawyer, psychologist and leader of a movement to dump psychiatrists' evidence at trials, makes no bones about his feelings. "Psychiatrists are incompetent. They shouldn't be allowed to testify in court."

Hardly a day goes by that one doesn't read or hear of a person committing a crime, often a violent offense, who "recently had been released from an institution."

The rash of murders a few years ago in Santa Cruz County were allegedly committed, for the most part, by persons with histories of mental disorders.

This begets the question, "Must society then incarcerate these persons for interminable years, not allowing them the chance to function in an unrestricted atmosphere again?"

I am not about to answer that question. But Ziskin believes he can, making the following comment in a recent Capitol News Service article by George Nicholson and Tom Condit:

"Psychiatry isn't a science, it's a conglomeration of speculation and conjecture which consists mainly of creative fiction and other factors operating within the psychiatrist."

A more moderate opinion may be the one offered by the writers of the article:

"The tools of psychiatry, which may be helpful in therapy situations with cooperative patients, are totally useless in dealing with someone who knows the impression he makes on the psychiatrist may well determine his place of residence for the next 20 years."

Ziskin likes to quote studies done by D.L. Rosenhan, a professor of psychiatry at Stanford University.

In one, Rosenhan reportedly told the administrator of a substantial mental hospital he would send one fake patient, possibly more, to the hospital within the next three months.

Hospital staff and professionals would evaluate the patients admitted and indicate which ones they thought were plants.

At the end of the three months, the hospital granddelouche the other shoe.

"Actually, we didn't send anyone at all during those three months," he told them.

Double standard

Editor, The Times:

(Open letter to Chuck Mahler)

It is not CARD but Fremont, The California Regional Water Quality Control Board and LAVVMA who are trying to impose a double water standard — and they are trying to impose it on the citizens of this Valley, not those of Niles and Fremont.

Before our effluent is allowed in Alameda Creek it must contain no more than 250 ppm TDS (recommended but not mandatory PHS standard for drinking water is 1000 ppm TDS). Other than LLLs quota of Hatch Hetchy water, out best water normally comes through the California Aqueduct System. This water now contains about 600 ppm TDS.

If you were at COVAs recent workshop you saw Bob Pearson present data to show that over the past decade TDS in Alameda Creek has averaged over 400 ppm TDS, the lowest values occurred during the summers when our effluent should have made its largest percentage contribution to creek flow. In the face of such data please explain to me why it suddenly became necessary for us to pipe our effluent into the Bay since this is cheaper than reducing the TDS down to the 250 ppm standard set just for Valley effluent.

The Clean Water Act of 1972 contains among other things a goal of "zero emissions" by 1983. If we accept water of 600 ppm TDS into our drinking water but must clean it to 250 ppm before we can release it, this goes well beyond "zero emissions" in my opinion. At the COVA Workshop, Fred Dierker of CRWQCB said he thought Congress was going to back track from the 1983 goal of "zero emissions" because of the zooming cost estimates and resulting mounting public opposition. Yet he gave no indication that he considered the 250 ppm standard for Valley effluent to warrant a similar second look.

Now you tell me who is trying to impose a double water standard and on whom. If you support uniform water standards for all you are backing the wrong team. You may decide that you would still rather fight than switch, Chuck, but you should at least find out what the fight is about.

Illogical, emotional

Editor, The Times:

I admire a cogent and logically presented opinion, even though it may differ with my own. I am repulsed by illogical and emotional arguments, such as those expressed by Al Fischer in a column on October 28, 1977.

Mr. Fischer seems to feel that if women are made equal to men in the eyes of the law, the family unit will be demeaned. He does not explain how he arrives at this absurd conclusion. Neither does he explain why women being made legally equal is a "deviant and kinky" cause.

Perhaps a lack of journalistic training explains the large number of unsupported allegations made in the editorial, or perhaps Mr. Fischer lacked time to research the facts. Whatever the case, this reader would appreciate more rational and better written editorials in the future.

Halloween helpers

Editor, The Times:

It took hours of work and dedication. It took children in Halloween costumes with cartons. But, most of all, it took the help of residents of Livermore who donated to UNICEF by participating in UNICEF Day activities.

Residents of our area raised $170.51 in the UNICEF Day Campaign. My 7th Grade Social Studies students and I are delighted with the generosity of the community and the very valuable support of your newspaper in advance publicity advising people the students would be out collecting for UNICEF on Halloween. This money allows UNICEF to assist 100 countries in Asia, Africa and Latin America launch important programs in health care, education, nutrition and social service. It also helps plan and establish child-care programs that give children in these countries a chance for a better life.

Even if you missed the local UNICEF Day fund drive, you can still help by sending your check to the U.S. Committee for UNICEF, 331 East 38th Street, New York, N.Y. 10016.

Thank you — your support helps a child today and contributes to a better world tomorrow.

round the town

The national trend these days is toward "job sharing." Everybody's doing it.

John Q. Everybody was interviewed just the other day on the success of his job sharing venture. Mr. Everybody is a social worker.

"I used to labor eight hours a day, five days a week at my job," Everybody said. "Sure, the pay was good, and Mrs. Everybody and I have a comfortable home, a good life, I suppose."

"But I've always felt I was missing something in life, know what I mean? After 20 years of going to the same office, working the same 40-hour week, hearing much the same social service problems, I was determined to change my life style."

"There was this young guy, Horace Eager, who had his degree in psychology from San Jose State, really qualified and everything, but he couldn't land a job as a social worker. Horace and I got talking about his problem, and my frustrations, and then we got this great idea!

"We'd share my job, split it right down the middle. I would work mornings, Horace would handle the case load afternoons. We'd both have a modest income, but adequate. And I would get to do all of the terrific things that had always been denied me, when I was tied down to my job, eight hours a day, 40 hours every week."

Things worked out just great for John Everybody and Horace Eager, at least for the first several weeks.

Eager found he could do the morning household chores for his wife, Vera Eager, while she slept in after a tough night as a dancer at the G String Go Go Club. Afternoons, Eager hustled off to his job at the Social Workers Central.

Meanwhile, John Everybody was busy telling his wife, Nevera, all about his exciting plans for spending his free afternoons finding "the real me ... the John Q. Everybody I've always known was down there, know what I mean?"

Nevera didn't quite get her husband's drift, but she was getting damned sick and tired of hearing him talk about it. Every afternoon, five days a week.

"When are you going to get out of here and really put some of these great new ideas into practice?" Nevera demanded of her husband, one afternoon. "It's bad enough my having to take in washing to make up that 50 percent cut in your paycheck, but how can I get this ironing done if you keep interrupting me with all this talk?"

Well, tensions grew in the Everybody household. It wasn't long before Mr. Everybody realized his marriage, everything he had worked for, were in jeopardy. What he needed was counseling, but he couldn't really afford a marriage counselor, not at his half-wages.

Why not Horace Eager? John Q. asked himself. Surely a bright young psychologist like Eager would be able to help Everybody, and for free.

Well, what with Everybody working mornings, and Eager working afternoons, the only time they had free for counseling was in the evenings. Which is what they did, at Horace Eager's home. And it was there, just as she was undressing for her graveyard shift at the G String Go Go, that Everybody first saw Vera Eager. In fact, he saw more and more of Vera as the evening counseling sessions rolled on.

Well, it wasn't long before John and Vera discovered that they both had their afternoons free. And it was only natural that they would start spending those afternoons together. Counseling each other, sort of.

This kept John out of Mrs. Everybody's way in the afternoons, which allowed Nevera to take in more washing, and get the family income almost back to where it was before John Q. split his job, and his paycheck, with Horace Eager.

Horace, meanwhile, found his wife so tired every morning that he was able to bustle around the Eager house mornings and get all the chores done without fear of waking up his lovely wife.

The chief of the social workers was so pleased with the work the team of Eager and Everybody was turning out, that he gave Eager/Everybody a raise in his/her paycheck. He also promised to promote him/her as soon as an opening/openings occurred.

So, as you can see, job sharing is an exciting new idea, with unlimited potential.

Don't tell me it wouldn't work for you. It sure as blazes works for Everybody.

Telephone

If you have ever rushed dripping from the shower to answer the urgent ringing of your telephone (and who hasn't?) only to find yourself on the receiving end of an unwelcome solicitation for painting your house, putting on aluminum roofing, or repairing your furnace, there is good news ahead.

U.S. Senator Wendell R. Anderson, former governor of Minnesota, has authored a bill to make such calls illegal. And he has put teeth in the bill by providing for a $1000 fine and 30 days in the slammer for each violation.

That his is not a lone protest against such unwanted intrusions of privacy is evidenced by the fact that a similar bill has been introduced in the House by Congressman Lee Aspin with the support of 40 co-authors.

At present there is little defense against the annoyance, even harassment, caused by unwanted phone calls. In California lawmakers have failed to act, fearful of the reactions of those who thrive on this method of solicitation. Phone subscribers may, in desperation ask that their numbers be unlisted method of solicitation. Phone subscribers may, in desperation ask that their numbers be unlisted but that doesn't stop the calls. Those in the business have access to other listings.

Up until now the most crass commercial types operate from "boiler rooms" where batteries of solicitors, working from morning till late evenings, callously go through page after page of numbers in pursuit of their victims.

But what really has brought Senator Anderson to action is the discovery that a new automated device capable of making 1000 taped phone calls a day is being marketed for a mere $4500. The mechanical "pitchman" has been so perfected it can even take your order.

Pointing out that telephone solicitation is already so enormous it produces an estimated $28 million a day through an astounding seven million calls daily, Senator Anderson said "I believe the right of person not to be telephoned for the purpose of commercial solicitation in the privacy of the home is a legitimate interest worthy of protection."

Under the terms of his bill phone companies would give each subscriber an opportunity to indicate such calls are unwanted; require commercial firms to obtain the lists of those who do not want phone calls, and fine or jail those who violate the law.

Anderson however is obviously a realist. Anticipating the opposition of various powerful groups whose telephone solicitations are well known, he has exempted charitable organizations, as well as agricultural, horticultural and political organizations, along with public opinion polls and radio and television rating firms.

He also exempted newspaper and magazine publishers for calls made for subscription renewals and calls made in connection with unpaid debts or unfulfilled contracts.

Anderson has been joined in his efforts in the Senate by his fellow Minnesotan, Hubert Humphrey and by Thomas McIntyre of New Hampshire.

Speaking in support of the bill McIntyre stated, "Few things are more basic in our society than the privacy of one's home and few things can be more disruptive of that privacy than unwanted phone calls that disturb your sleep or pull you out of the shower." The bill he said "is a simple and sensible solution to a problem that really does not need to be a problem."

Amen.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm an 18-year-old girl. I always adored my father. Though I loved both my parents, my father was something very special to me. We shared a great love of nature and he started taking me on nature walks when I was 5, and taught me about birds and wildlife. He and my mother were divorced two years ago and because there was no hatred or terrible anger between them I was able to accept the situation. I never knew the cause of it and didn't ask. Last week, through a friend, I found out that my father is a homosexual and went to live with a man. My mother never would have told me. Now, I'm full of hate and I wish he weren't related to me at all. —D.M.

DEAR D.M.: I sympathize with the pain you're feeling. I think to overcome it, you're going to have to try to be more mature than most of your friends and the many adults you'll meet.

At 18, it's important to begin to see one's parents as individuals. When we grow up we learn to love and recognize our parents, not just as the total love objects they were when we were children, but as whole, full human beings with faults and weaknesses as well as virtues. When we see them as separate human beings the ties of emotional dependency weaken, allowing us to form close love relationships outside the home.

The fact that your father is homosexual obviously did not prevent him from being a kind, loving and protective father. His present relationship doesn't deny or destroy all the things you loved about him when you were growing up. It doesn't mean that he loves you less and it shouldn't diminish your feelings about him. He is the same person you loved and who loved you.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband is like a big kid and I've always loved him for it. But now that our children are growing up, it's hard for him to understand that they want to have their own friends. He always wanted to be a close buddy to them and I was glad. The problem is that he feels angry and rejected now that they're going off on their own. It's as if he wants to be included on their dates. I can almost see this going through his mind. I hate to see him hurt, yet I don't know how to explain to him that it's not right to stand in our children's way. —J.J.

DEAR J.J.: Children, especially adolescents, want and need guidance from parents. Parents who insist on trying to be "one of them," who continue to act and dress as if they were teenagers themselves are really robbing their youngsters of the authority and the supervision they need.

Every parent needs to preserve a certain amount of separation from his child. If he's too much of a buddy, the child becomes afraid and anxious because they're all children together and there's no adult to protect him.

This doesn't mean parents have to be cold, distant and unfriendly, but it does mean that they should be constantly counted on to provide an adult role model. Children want to be different from their parents and the older generation, and they should be allowed to be. If parents copy every dress or speech style, they will push their youngsters to further and further extremes of behavior. The child has to be able to establish his own identity, separate from that of his parent. Adolescent rebellion is part of the process.

Maintaining the difference between the ages help reassure the child and it also helps the parent to see himself in a realistic frame.

Talk with your husband. Try to make him realize that he's injuring the children as well as himself. He is not a child. He is a grown man who should be able to face this and assume his adult responsibility. You can help him, your marriage and your family by treating him like an adult. By codding him you are encouraging him to continue to be immature. This is unfair to him and to the children.

Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I need information and help with a condition called transient cerebral ischemia. I am 61 years of age. I momentarily blacked out and my left leg was paralyzed momentarily. Now I am having muscle spasms in my right leg. These come at any time.

My cholesterol count is 225, weight 146. The doctors gave me Quinamm for the muscle spasm; what I want is help for the ischemia.

DEAR READER — These episodes are also called transient ischemic attacks abbreviated as TIA, and some like to call them "little strokes."

The hallmark of such episodes is their transient nature — momentary paralysis with recovery or momentary loss of speech or other signs we associate with a stroke, but they don't last.

There are several theories as to what causes them. Some think they are caused by small parts of a larger clot in the arteries of the neck breaking off and going with the circulation to the brain. Still others think they are associated with an increased tendency of the small platelet cells in the blood to clump and cause an obstruction in a small artery to the brain.

I am sure your doctors have evaluated your neck vessels carefully. Regardless of what is the underlying mechanism of such attacks, many patients seem to do well by taking some anti-clotting medicine, such as Coumadin. There is a national study now in progress on the possible benefits of aspirin, since it has an anti-clotting action too.

I don't know whether your muscle spasm in your leg is related to your TIA or not, or for that matter, even to disease of the arteries, but your doctors will know on the basis of their examination. The medicines containing quinine are often very helpful in controlling muscle spasm or leg cramps.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I work in an institution and the cooks claim that just being around food can cause one to gain weight. Any truth to this?

DEAR READER — Yes. Why? Because when many people are around food they have a habit of eating it. It isn't looking at it that is the problem, it is eating it. It is a severe test of will power for a person who likes to eat — and most people do — to prepare food and not eat it. That is why I have so much empathy for mothers or anyone who cooks the family food. A taste here and a taste there mounts up.

I have one friend who eats very little — at the table — but if you counted what she eats before and after the meal in the kitchen that would be another story. One good adjunct to a diet is an empty refrigerator.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHY DOES MY STOMACH RUMBLE WHEN I'M HUNGRY?"

BOBBY MORGAN
PRESCOTT, AZ

A. THE RUMBLING OF YOUR STOMACH WHEN IT IS EMPTY IS CAUSED BY THE CHURNING ACTION OF THE STOMACH MUSCLES.

When you are hungry, your stomach can sometimes rumble almost as if it were saying, "When do we eat?"

The stomach is a hollow, muscular organ. When you eat, strong muscles in the walls of the stomach churn the food and thoroughly mix it with digestive juices, which come from glands in the stomach lining.

The food is a thick liquid by the time it is ready to leave the stomach.

You usually have your breakfast, lunch, and supper at the same time each day, and the churning action of the stomach tends to start on a regular schedule.

When digestion is working normally, a person is unaware of the churning movements of the stomach. But if you do not eat at your usual mealtime, the stomach's churning action may begin anyway.

With nothing in your stomach to digest, the vigorous churning motion can sometimes get noisy and you say your stomach is "growing" or "rumbling."

Look at the West hand and the bidding. You find that your opponents have bid six spades after a Blackwood four notrump by South and a spade response by North to show three aces. Is this a good time to open your ace of clubs against the slam or should you lead your jack of hearts and wait hopefully?

Now look at the other hands. If you make the waiting lead South will take all 13 tricks and you will still be waiting. If you lead the ace of clubs, your partner will ask you to come on and North will be telling South that he should never bid Blackwood with a worthless doubleton in an unbid suit.

It is possible to set up North-South hands where the heart lead will be a winner and the ace of clubs lead a loser.

As a matter of our practice we would open the heart against opponents who were very careful about their use of Blackwood. Against anyone else, and that includes almost all players, we would open the ace.

Career day planned

DUBLIN — The Career Center at Dublin High School will host representatives from four schools in the coming week.

On Monday, a representative of the University of Portland will be in the Career Center to discuss admission requirements and programs offered. The informal meeting begins at 9 a.m.

On Tuesday, a representative of Crain Modeling School and Agency will be present while Chapman College (9 a.m.) and University of Redlands (1:30 p.m.) will have speakers present on Wednesday.

Wells School explores pupils' future careers

DUBLIN — "We're trying to make students aware, at this level, that there is something beyond high school in the area of specific career positions."

Peggy Dill, coordinator of Career Exploration at Wells Intermediate School, explains that youngsters at the junior high school level often perceive general career fields but don't realize there are dozens of job titles within the field.

While Career Exploration is still in the formative stages at Wells, planning and previous career education classes have been undertaken at the school.

"We're trying to incorporate the program," states Ms. Dill, "within departments so kids can see what types of jobs they can aspire to in the field of, say, mathematics, art, home economics or languages."

The intent, as an advisory committee has planned, is to explore the many jobs within a profession. Youngsters, as Ms. Dill reiterates, often aspire to be a "doctor" or "pilot" or "nurse," not realizing the dozens of other jobs within the field.

The advisory committee composed of Ms. Dill, principal Hal White, and eight teachers at Wells, was formed last year and meets monthly.

One of the initial activities was to survey students to determine their career interests.

Ms. Dill notes that some youngsters strive to become a "nurse" or "pilot" or "doctor" and when they realize they may lack the requirements, become discouraged, not realizing the numerous other jobs in the field.

"We're also striving to show them the non-traditional roles available. There are places for men in the nursing field just as there are places for women in professions formerly considered strictly a male domain," continues Ms. Dill.

In the process of setting up Career Exploration, Ms. Dill visited and reviewed materials from similar programs at Harvest Park in Pleasanton, a Concord junior high, and Irvington High School in Fremont.

One of the major decisions of the advisory committee was to make Career Exploration a part of the curriculum at Wells rather than just an left+e.

To further acquaint students and parents with careers and the program underway at Wells, a Career Night has been scheduled Nov. 17 at 8 p.m. in the multi-purpose room.

There will be presentations by professionals in four career areas: Mathematics—Robert Bolme, Computer Synergy, and Harry Molz, a Dublin realtor; Science—James D. Woessner, Nuclear Regulatory Commission; Sandy Geiger, nurse practitioner; Foreign language, Lew Ruibal, bilingual counselor at Cal State Hayward, and Gloria Vilasca, Bi-lingual social worker specializing in mental health.

There will be a question and answer session following the presentations, and refreshments will be served.

County favors federal welfare cost program

OAKLAND — The biggest welfare reform President Carter could accomplish would be to have the federal government pay for welfare and let the counties administer the program, Alameda County supervisors said this week.

There are various theories about whether local, regional or federal control of a revamped welfare program is best and supervisors definitely want to be holding as many strings on it as they can.

Federal control of the social security program has not worked very well with a combination of red tape and computer foulups causing a high percentage of errors resulting in slow or non-existent services to those who need and qualify for them, resenting says a report done jointly by social services department and social workers.

The payment error rate disclosed in a federal report in 1976 on Social SThe payment error rate disclosed in a federal report in 1976 on Social SThe payment error rate disclosed in a federal report in 1976 on Social S

The county report also makes the following recommendations to Carter to change his proposed welfare revamp:

— Create as many CETA (Comprehensive Employment Training Act) jobs as possible necessary to cover all employables if they can't find private employment.

— Allow employable welfare recipients to select the most desirable CETA job category before looking for a job.

— Give federal assistance to welfare applicants while they are being trained for jobs.

— Drop a requirement to report income for the previous six months because it discriminates against seasonal workers, strikers, and partially employed people and is difficult to administer. Replace it with a requirement to report current month income or, for existing welfare recipients, two prior months budgeting.

AC Transit business shows hike

OAKLAND — AC Transit carried more than 61 million passengers during the past fiscal year, the highest number in its 17 year history.

It was a 4.8 per cent increase from the previous year, also a record year. The biggest increase, 7 per cent, came in the 11 million trips on transbay service.

Some suburban areas showed high growth. Fremont and Newark ridership rose 32 per cent. The Concord local bus system improved 49 per cent and Pleasant Hill 137 per cent.

Ridership on buses operated by BART from suburban areas to train stations showed an increase of 29.9 per cent. Night patronage showed no gain although BART initiated extended evening hours.

Why we turn to fad diets

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Fat people turn to fad diets and bizarre reducing schemes partly because medical science shrugs its shoulders over obesity and hasn't come up with better alternatives, doctors say.

"Most doctors are sort of turned off by the obese patients and don't feel they can help them. So a lot of patients are forced to turn to these fad programs, which may hurt them and may not help them," says Dr. John Karam, associate director of the Metabolic Research Unit at the University of California here.

Many doctors, he says, "shrug their shoulders and don't try very hard because so many fat people are almost destined to failure."

"Everyone assumes fat people aren't worth the time to sit with and talk to and encourage and motivate when almost all of them eventually regain the weight," if they lose any, says Karam.

Doctors agree that fad diets and strange techniques — like electro-shock therapy, acupuncture and shots of HCG, a hormone from the urine of pregnant women — help people lose weight. But that is only because a low-calorie diet is usually involved, too.

The gimmicks — the needles, the shots, the shocks — just help motivate the dieters, doctors say. They are able to lean on the ritual involved, and their hopes rise thinking something "magic" or special is happening.

"The reason they lose weight is because they follow the low-calorie diet," says Dr. Jerrold Olefsky of Stanford University's metabolic unit. "The reason they follow it more closely than others is that they're paying for it, which provides strong motivation."

In fact, participants in an experimental reducing clinic at Stanford have lost unusually large amounts of weight under a plan which has them "deposit" $20 a week in an imaginary account. They get the money back only if they lose a certain number of pounds, says Dr. Robert Jeffery, a psychologist who runs the program.

Doctors generally feel the only real risk from fad diets and reducing gimmicks is to the fat person's pocketbook. "When you stop the diet or the treatment, you're really the same person you were, mentally, so you usually gain it all back" and have to return time after time to keep losing weight, says Olefsky.

"It's called recidivism and the recidivism rate is enormous on fad diets," he says. "The slower, more painstaking, difficult, conventional approaches — like Weight Watchers and TOPS — they do it sensibly. Those programs are, in the long run, 100 times more effective than any of the fad diets."

Some dieting gimmicks can present hazards, although doctors disagree on what they are.

Diets involving a very low calorie intake, including the popular liquid protein diet, could deplete the body of necessary elements like potassium, sodium and phosphorus, leaving the dieter prone to infection and his heart muscles susceptible to permanent damage.

Such diets also increase the uric acid in the body, which could lead to gout. And, says Dr. Robert Herman, editor of the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition, "Some actually do starve themselves to death. It's rare but it's a worry."

The HCG shots have been shown to be no more effective than salt water in helping people lose weight. Most doctors think they're harmless. But Dr. Joseph Ross, professor of medicine at UCLA Medical School in Los Angeles, says he's seen at least two cases of serious problems — including severe bleeding — linked to the HCG treatment.

Parlors intended to help melt away cellulite — described by believers as fat deposits that plague only women — cannot possibly work, doctors insist.

"Cellulite doesn't exist. There's no such thing. It's hokum," says Herman. Attempts to melt it away by submitting women to steam baths, massages, heat lamp treatments and wet flannel wraps may cause temporary weight loss through sweating, but it won't last, doctors say.

While they can't think of any serious risk from being wrapped in wet flannel, sticking needles in the edge of your ear or undergoing mild electric shocks while eating your favorite fatty foods, doctors react uniformly to such things. They're amazed.

"It isn't that any of these faddists offer anything at all, but that the legitimate medical community hasn't offered any better alternatives," says Olefsky.

"If someone can talk somebody into wrapping their body up in flannel, just think what's next!"

"I'm gonna open up a farm where you come out and put your head in the sand. It will cost you $100 to put your head in my sand. And you'll lose weight."

"Because you can't eat with your head in the sand."

Business promoting fitness.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The price of executive success frequently includes a pot belly, a martini habit and sudden awareness of heart attack statistics.

Now, corporations who have lost too many top people in their prime are fighting back with company-funded fitness programs for the flabby and fatigued.

In downtown Los Angeles, an outfit called Fitness Systems Inc. has a membership of some 400 executives who work out at a bright modern "fitness center" in the bowels of the high-rise Arco office building and shopping plaza.

"In two years, our members have lost an average total of 1.2 tons," says Cindy Miller, FIS director of marketing.

With employers paying half or more of the initiation and yearly membership fees — about $500 — executives are encouraged to trim down and tone up.

"The company is saying, 'We think you're important,'" explains Ms. Miller.

"Many members come here instead of joining the lunch bunch. After they work out, they grab some juice and a protein bar instead of prime rib and three martinis."

Elsewhere in the Los Angeles area, FIS installs in-house exercise facilities at corporations willing to make the investment.

They range from a minigym of 200 to 1,000 square feet to a full-sized 6,000-square-foot facility with an indoor jogging track. Physiologists are hired to supervise each exercise program.

FIS has installed private gyms for such companies as Fluor Corp., Teledyne Inc., Great Western Savings and the Los Angeles Times.

At FIS headquarters, membership is predominantly male.

"We have about 55 women members," says Ms. Miller. "Being company-sponsored, we're talking about the executive management level, and there aren't that many women in those positions. Usually, assistant vice presidents and above are eligible."

Women pay a lower fee because they have access to the center for only about two hours a day when men are excluded.

The exercise plan, developed by fitness expert and author L.E. Morehouse, has a double thrust — weight loss and cardiovascular development.

The program includes indoor jogging, electronic bicycles that monitor the heart rate and stretching and flexibility exercises. The typical regime is 30 to 40 minutes three times a week.

For those whose business involves travel, there's a "travel fitness program" to carry in a suitcase or briefcase. It gives you exercises to do in a hotel room.

FIS is the brainchild of former corporate executives William L. Horton and F. Paul Karres, Harvard business school graduates who felt their colleagues would see fitness as money in the bank.

The enthusiasm of their current executive members appears to prove their theory.

"Many men come in here as early as 7 a.m. without showering or shaving," reports Ms. Miller. "We supply the razor blades, hair dryers and toiletries. By 8 o'clock, they're up at their offices feeling great."

Bypass surgery for desperate

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Among the nation's dieters, the most desperate are those clinically known as "morbidly obese," persons who need to lose more than 100 pounds.

For many of them, the last resort is the intestinal bypass operation, a recently invented procedure which has substantial health risks.

It's now estimated that 30,000 Americans have chosen the operation in which the small intestine is shortened from 20 feet to 18 inches to reduce the area in which food is absorbed as it passes through the body.

Trees hit

SACRAMENTO (AP) — About 18 million trees were killed by the drought in California this year, enough to build 600,000 houses, foresters say.

Lack of water killed some, but most died because their drought-stricken condition made them vulnerable to disease and insects, Dick Smith, an entomologist for the U.S. Forest Service, said Wednesday.

Casals eases by Tyler

OAKLAND — The United States tennis team swept Great Britain 4-0 in three singles and one doubles match to win a second consecutive Wightman Cup Tennis Championship here at the Coliseum last evening.

The victory brings the totals to 40 for the U.S. and nine for the British.

In an expedient second match, Billie Jean King and Joanne Russell defeated the Britains' Sue Mappin and Lesley Charles 6-0, 6-1 in doubles.

Rosie Casals narrowly slipped by Michelle Tyler 6-2, 3-6, 6-4 in the first match.

In the first game of the first set, on Tyler's possessive serve, Casals managed to overpower her with well-placed corner shots and playing the net more than effectively.

In the second game Casals double-faulted but came back to ace Tyler on the next point. She double-faulted again, but executing the same game strategies, she was able to pull ahead and won three consecutive games.

The outward attitude that Tyler displayed might have given Casals a psychological advantage early in the first set. Tyler appeared either very nervous or non-chalant as she watched potential reachable balls fly by.

Casals had problems of her own. Her inconsistent play eventually helped give the British their second and final game of the set. She varied from playing brilliantly to mildly mediocre. Her first service attempts also gave her some trouble.

Tyler explained after the match that she certainly didn't have a care-free attitude.

"I was very nervous. It's the most nervous I've ever been," she admitted. "I was most nervous at the beginning, before I ever walked out on the court."

United States retained the advantage in the final game of the first set, and although Casals again faltered on the first service, she managed to salvage the decisive points when Tyler blew one up by the line.

Casals outguessed and anticipated Tyler's shots, whereas Tyler remained stiff and rigid in her movements.

First service difficulties continued for Casals leading into the second set. She faulted on the first serve five consecutive times.

But Casals' extra effort offensive form helped her to win the first game and the second set.

With an arm extension that didn't seem possible, Casals came to the net to drop the ball surprisingly softly to put the U.S. back into contention after the score had risen to 4-1 in Tyler's favor.

Somewhere midway through the set, Tyler discovered her inspiration and began to play more convincingly. On a well-deserved point in the fifth game she volleyed with Casals with a display of admirable determination.

"In the second set, she put me in a position where I just couldn't sit back and return the ball. She really began finding her range," Casals said in praise of her opponent.

The same game became a veritable see-saw contest of deuce and advantage. The embattled game finally went to Great Britain for a five-to-one edge.

Casals broke Tyler's service in the next game and closed in on Great Britain's lead, 4-3.

But the 19-year-old Tyler seemed to have found her niche, and she fitted it remarkably, completely devastating Casals in the last two games of the set 6-3 to send the match into a deciding set.

The third set was easier for Casals, as her service became more accurate. In the first game, it looked as though Tyler's style might have, too.

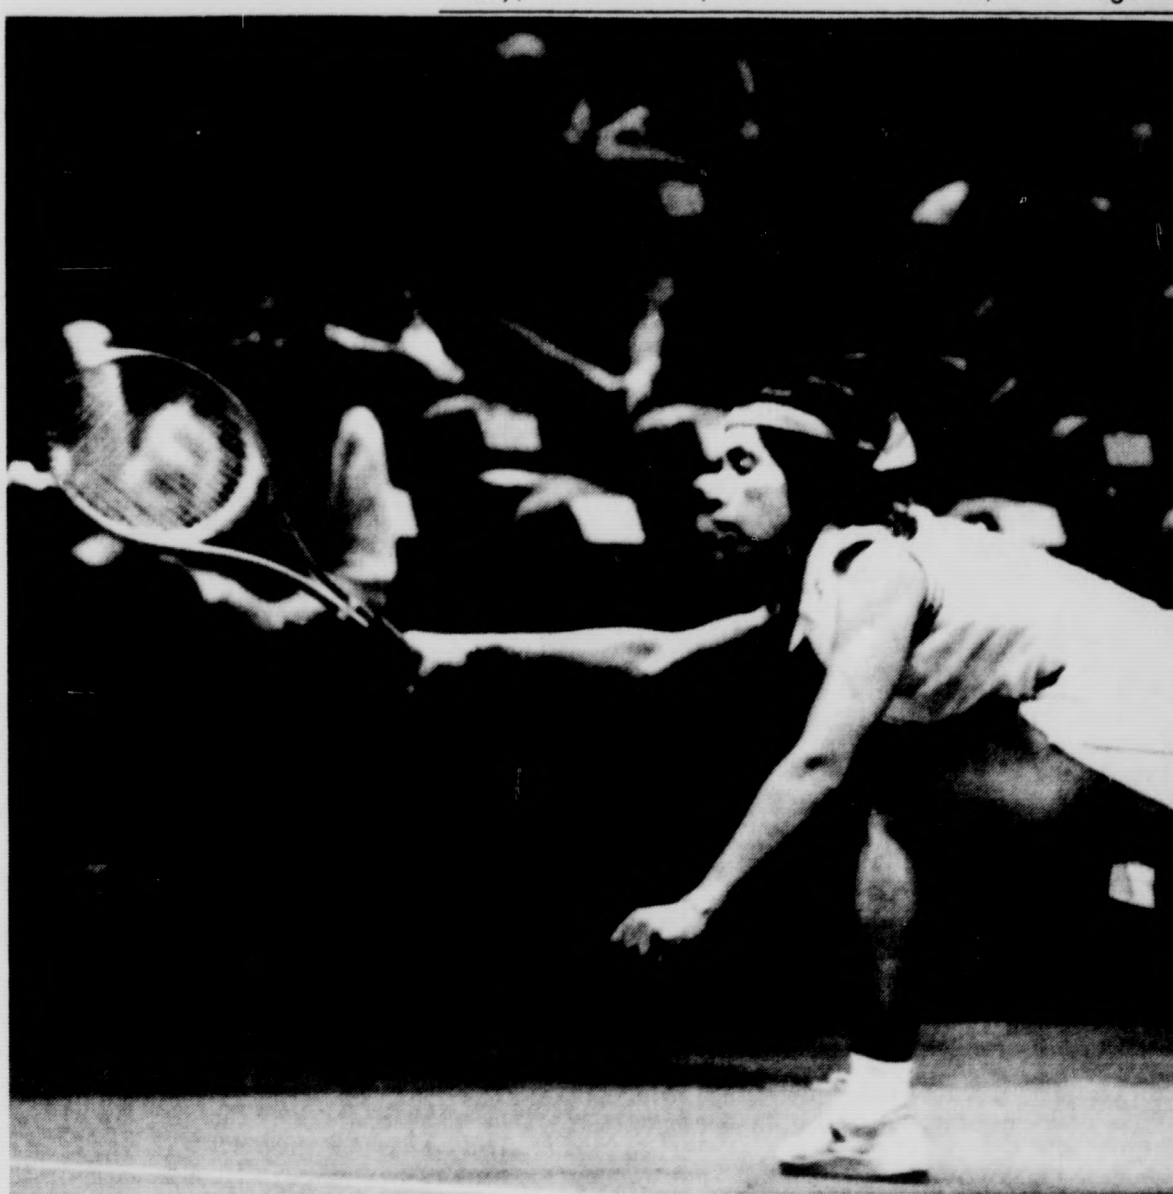

But the youngster was hard-pressed to survive the aggressiveness of the 32-year-old veteran Casals, who won her first singles match in the Wightman Cup.

"All right!," Casals shouted. "I'm actually pretty old. Also, the court doesn't bounce that hard," Casals explained.

Beginning to show signs of tiring, Casals in the eighth game hit four balls into the net to lose and Britain tied the score 4-4.

Rallying back in the next game, Casals took four confident and consecutive points on her serve to take a 5-4 edge, and won the next game for the set and match.

Coaches await MV-SR title game

Lyle Setencich stands in one corner, Michael O'Leary in the other. The championship football bout is on the line.

And it's a winner take all situation for the victor.

It's also a good week to place odds on ulcers from respective sides.

"I'm starting to get fired up," declares a nervous Setencich, San Ramon High's second year coach.

Similar words come from the other side: "It's starting to get to me," insists O'Leary, turning the fortunes at Monte Vista in only his first year.

Both meet head-on Friday night on the Mustangs' field in Danville in the "Town Titanic" which will end all inquiry to a flock of unanswered questions.

San Ramon enters the game carrying a 5-1 East Bay Athletic League mark while their hosts, on the verge of the school's first ever football championship, rest atop the league ladder showing off an unbeaten 5-0-1 slate.

The confrontation is billed as a classic. Never in the series' nine year history has so much been bearing on one contest. The winner will advance to the North Coast Section 4-A football playoffs. The loser, looking for a possible wild card spot, will likely wind-up viewing the post season affair from the sidelines.

Both coaches are taking the nice guy approach in the 8 p.m. scuffle, talking more like Truman Capote than the late Vince Lombardi.

The expected complimentary phrases are coming full steam from both corners, Setencich says. "They have 14 good football players back from last year. Those kids have developed over a period of three years and from a coaching standpoint are all very good."

And from Monte Vista, O'Leary sound equally suspicious. "I really respect San Ramon. From what we've seen, they're a well coached team and throw the heck out of the ball."

And how many times have you heard this one before?

"I think the team that executes the best and makes the fewest mistakes will win," said Setencich for the tenth straight week.

Football rhetoric is commonplace this time of year for championship contending teams. Secrets are held to a hush, nerves jangle, and game plans are seemingly locked in the Fort Knox vault. No one wants to give an inch.

"Hey," cautions Setencich. "I have to be careful of what I say this week. I don't want to say anything that might fire them (Monte Vista) up. This is a big week for us."

Not everything is hinging on Friday's finale, if you see it like O'Leary. "It's only a game," he shrugs.

It's also Monte Vista's biggest game ever. The school has never laid claim on a football championship, has yet to play a post season encounter and could close out the East Bay Athletic League campaign with an undefeated record.

"Our kids go out to play and have some fun," stressed the first year coach, a shoe-in for coach of the year honors if the EBAL decided one, "and if we come away as a winner, that's fine. And if we come away as a loser, then we tell ourselves, 'Okay we lost. What kind of experience was gained from what we did?'"

"I can feel the rivalry," he stressed. "These kids are all friends. They're going to beat the hell out of one another. And that's good. There's nothing better than squaring off with a friend and knocking his block off."

"It'll be a very emotional game," he continued, his voice rising. "It'll be fun to play it. I'm sure whoever loses the game will feel very down. But in a couple of weeks, it'll go away. It's not the end of the world."

It might be difficult to convince Setencich of those words. He and his coaching staff have been taming their troops all season long for the freeway clash. In fact, it started last summer when former Monte Vista head coach Jim Nelson and assistant McMasters moved over to San Ramon, leaving a team that staggered through a 3-4 EBAL slate and 20-7 shellacking to the Wolves in the final contest a year ago.

Nelson knows the trade secrets of his former club, but both coaches agree the shift should give the Mustangs a slight edge in the San Ramon Valley feud Friday.

"I think they have a psychological advantage because Nelson moved down to our place," noted Setencich. "They might be able to use that as a tool."

O'Leary has been swept up in a churning undercurrent, which has provided the new coach with ample information.

"I think personally that a lot of the kids here have taken some abuse," he admitted. "I think that's evolved from some of the people who used to be here. Repeatedly, I have been told that the kids were told they were no good, that they were losers and didn't have what it took."

"But at that particular instant, who knows?" he added. "I wasn't here or a part of that. I know that the kids on the other side of the freeway have mentioned that it wouldn't be much of a contest. It's the why bother to show up type thing. That's fine with me."

The verbal war is on. O'Leary delivers another jab, followed by a right hook.

"We're not a mouthy team and when the time comes we'll be ready," he added, with the force of an Ali punch.

Setencich counters. "Yeah, you can talk and talk, but that's not going to win the ball game." But the strategic minded O'Leary isn't pulling any punches. He continues to throw 'em, contending the home field advantage will provide his club with added incentive.

"I definitely think it will," he stressed, anxious for the kick-off. "It's on our home ground. It's our home field. It's our crowd. They're coming over here to challenge us."

Setencich hammers that thought, using his best punch.

"No, I don't think it'll be a real factor at all," he scoffs. "San Ramon and Monte Vista could play on the roof and it wouldn't make any difference. It will be a great game."

Setencich adds another zinger. "You could probably go out there tonight with no crowd and still have a great game."

Ex-Clipper keeper is Stomper coach

OAKLAND — It was a homecoming of sorts at the Oakland Coliseum here yesterday.

Mirko Stojanovic, former goalie for the Oakland Clippers and San Jose Earthquakes, was named head coach of the new Oakland Stomper team in the North American Soccer League.

Stojanovic, who played with the now-defunct Clippers in 1967 and 1968 and San Jose in 1974, has been retired since 1975 and was involved with a local electronics firm since then.

"It is great to be back in this sport which I love so much," he stated. "I am particularly excited about the possibilities of professional soccer in Oakland and I am looking forward to meeting the people in the community who have offered the Stompers so much support. We will offer the fans an offensive brand of soccer with many shots on goal. Stompers soccer will be quality soccer."

Stojanovic, who also played with the Dallas Tornado in 1971, feels the Stompers will be competitive with the established Earthquakes both in the field and attendance-wise.

"I'm sure we will be able to hold our own with the Earthquakes in our first season," he commented. "The Coliseum in itself is a big advantage. It's a big field and you can play a more minded game on it. On a smaller field you force into more of a defensive-style game."

"We want to start winning right away," he went on. "But, of course there are a lot of other teams that want to do the same thing."

Stomper general manager Dick Berg praised the new coach.

"Mirko established himself as the greatest goalkeeper in the North American Soccer League and we are looking forward to him establishing a similar standard in the coaching end of it. He knows where the talent is and he will be the cornerstone around which we plan to build a first-class team to play in this first-class facility."

Stojanovic's stats show how good he was.

He is first in the all-time list in goals-against average in the NASL with a 1.11 average. With the Clippers he led the league in goalkeeping stats his first season and was the mainstay in the nets for their championship club. In 1967 Stojanovic set a league record by holding the opposition to two or fewer goals in a single game 27 times.

Besides playing in the NASL Stojanovic also played soccer in his native Yugoslavia.

Besides announcing the new coach, Berg, Stompers' owner Milan Mandaric and Coliseum, Inc. general manager Bill Cunningham signed a 10-year lease agreement for the Stompers to play in the Coliseum.

Kings in town

Scouted see-saw Warriors

OAKLAND — The Golden State Warriors know they could play defense. It's been winning for them all season. After outgunning the Indiana Pacers, 132-129, Wednesday night, they know they can play offense.

A fair question would be when will the Warriors play both on the same night? Maybe, for Golden State's sake, it's better if no one knows.

The Warriors are a very hard team to scout.

"The scouts and coaches are always telling us about the other teams, its good to see them in person once in a while," said Kansas City King forward Richard Washington Wednesday. The Kings, in the midst of an almost heavenly — considering the typical National Basketball Association schedule — three-day stay in the Bay Area, watched the Warriors win Wednesday.

How much of an advantage that will be when the Kings return to the Coliseum in uniform tonight is dubious.

Head coach Phil Johnson was full of questions at a court-side table. E.C. Coleman sat out much of Wednesday's game and Charles Dudley played much more than usual. Rick Barry scored six points in the first half, then managed 39 in the second.

Wesley Cox was the first Warrior forward off the bench and played only three minutes. Little-used Larry McNeill played 11 minutes in the second half.

Maybe it would have been better for the Kings had they stayed away and recalled whatever lessons were taught in their sloppy 105-95 exhibition win over the Warriors at the Coliseum just about a month ago.

Wednesday's Warrior-Pacer game was in doubt from the ragged opening minutes till Robert Parish took a 60-foot baseball pass from Phil Smith and slammed home a dunk with 10 seconds to play.

The Warriors had gotten the ball back via a charging call on Ricky Sobers that Indiana coach Bob Leonard claimed was disgraceful. It was close enough that not a few observers credited Charles Dudley with a fine acting job for his backward sprawl across the key.

Dudley and Warrior head coach Al Attles were not among that group.

"I was just trying to get into position," claimed Dudley. "I wasn't trying to draw the foul. I know Sobers likes to go right, then spin left for his jumper, so I just got position — I'd have been very upset if the call had gone the other way."

Still, Dudley has been known to draw a call or two. Without the enthusiasm of the 9847 Coliseum fans, would the call have been the same, in say, Indiana?

"I hope so," said a grinning Attles.

Rick Barry, who chucked in 45 points, added, "The calls went both ways. It became a free throw shooting contest."

"You hope the calls go your way at home, but they always balance out in the course of a season."

And how will the Warriors balance out in the course of this season? Picked by the plethora of pulp basketball magazines to do not better than fourth in the ultra-competitive Pacific Division, the Warriors have been no worse than second during the first dozen games this year.

With a little luck, they could be 9-3 instead of 7-5, two and one-half games behind leader Portland.

"There's still a lot of improvement with this team," Barry said, agreeing that the Warriors' mark could indeed be two games better. "I thought in San Antonio (where the Warriors won the only game of their recent four-game road trip) we played up to our potential for about six minutes of the fourth quarter."

"We played defense, offense and took advantage of our speed," Barry said. "I don't know why we can't do that more..."

Who does?

Gary Brown
A simple change for the better
On Sports

While it's still a bit too early to tell it appears the San Francisco 49ers may have finally awakened from their long slump.

San Francisco, which has struggled from the middle of last year's 8-6 season to the first part of this season, has suddenly won three games in a row to put itself right back in the National Football League's National Conference Western Division race.

And with a 3-5 record at that!

After struggling to a 1-5 mark in pre-season games and losing their first five games of the regular schedule the 49ers were considered a lost cause by most observers of the pro football scene.

The Niners had scored just 46 points and given up 107 in the five league contests.

Their once vaunted Gold Rush defensive line had been effectively curtailed, they hadn't intercepted a pass and the running game has been virtually eliminated.

Then the 49er management made the "brilliant" decision to let quarterback Jim Plunkett call his own plays.

The result was a convincing 28-7 victory over the Detroit Lions, not an awesome club to be sure, but one that is still in contention for the NFC's Central Division championship.

Add this to the fact the NFC's Western Division is not exactly overloaded with talent and you have a 49er team that could challenge for the division championship.

Whether the decision to let Plunkett call his own plays made the difference in the team's performance is open to debate. But it definitely gave a much-needed boost to team morale.

Actually with Plunkett calling his own plays the 49er attack hasn't been that much more wide-open than it was before. Plunkett hit wide receiver Gene Washington for two touchdown passes in the victory over Detroit but in the victories over Tampa Bay and Atlanta the team has played generally conservative football, attempting to pick at the opposing team's defenses rather than do all the damage in one long bomb.

However, since Plunkett has been given the play-calling duties the team has improved in all aspects of its game. The defensive rush has been better as has the defensive backfield. The offensive line, while still erratic, has proven decent enough to give the 49er running backs holes when they need them at crucial times.

But the big improvement has been with the special teams.

Punter Tom Wittum, who had several punts blocked in the early season, hasn't had one since the winning streak began. And last week against Atlanta he had his best game of the season, averaging over 40 yards per punt and keeping the Falcons pinned down in their own territory for much of the game.

San Francisco has also been getting better performances from its punt and kick-off return men. Paul Hoffer is one of the better return men in the National Conference and it was his kickoff return to midfield at the opening of the second half against Atlanta which gave the 49ers the only touchdown of the contest.

When all aspects of a team's play improve the team will naturally improve along with it.

The main reason the 49ers have been playing The main reason the 49ers have better football is because the team has more confidence in its own ability.

The reason for that confidence is the fact that with Plunkett calling the plays, the Niners feel more like a professional outfit, rather than a junior college or high school team.

It doesn't help a professional football team's morale when the coach is calling the plays from the sidelines.

Whether head coach Ken Meyers called plays better than Plunkett does is not the point. With Plunkett in charge the players feel they have the confidence of the coaches and management. Relations between the players and the management have probably improved since Plunkett started calling the plays.

For a team to be a success on the field it needs the backing of the coaching staff.

When Plunkett was allowed to call his own plays the players received that backing and the results have been positive.

Glads begin playoffs

SAN FRANCISCO — The Chabot Gladiators, 12th-ranked in the latest California Community College soccer poll, travel to Balboa Soccer Stadium here tomorrow morning to meet 11th-ranked San Francisco in a first round Golden Gate Conference soccer play-off game.

The game begins at 11 a.m. instead of 1 p.m. as originally scheduled. This afternoon at 1 p.m. West Valley will host regular season champion DeAnza.

The Foothill Owls, California Community College champions a year ago will not be included in the playoffs, though they defeated West Valley, 3-0.

The Owls were found guilty of using forward Rigoberto Alas in several games this season and had to forfeit them all.

Bowling continues

The Livermore Valley Tournament will enter its second week of action this Saturday at the Granada Bowl in Livermore.

The team event is scheduled for Saturday, while the Doubles and Singles events will be held Sunday.

Over 4,000 bowlers from throughout Northern California are competing for the $13,000 in prize money being offered by the tourney, sponsored by Caratti Jewelers of Livermore and Pleasanton.

49ers' Gold Key to NFL Game

Will it be Bobby Scott, Archie Manning or Bobby Douglass at quarterback for the New Orleans Saints Sunday against the San Francisco 49ers at the Louisiana Superdome?

And will running back Chuck Muncie surface in time for the game?

Those were the key questions late this week as Hank Stram's 2-6 Saints prepared to host Ken Meyer's revived 49ers, who have won their last three starts after stumbling from the gate with five successive defeats.

Whoever draws the qb assignment for New Orleans must be ready for the assault of the Gold Rush, San Francisco's devastating defensive line of Tommy Hart, Jimmy Webb, Cleveland Elam and Cedrick Hardman.

The 49ers led the NFL in quarterback sacks a year ago with 61 for 573 yards in losses. They have 31 this season, 20 coming in the last three outings.

The 49ers bested Atlanta, 10-3, last week in the Queen City of the South. New Orleans, meanwhile, was being ambushed by the Philadelphia Eagles, 28-7.

Muncie, the former California Golden Bear standout, was absent from the practice Tuesday and Wednesday. Stram said that Mike Strachan would be in the backfield with Tony Galbreath when the game begins Sunday. A fourth victory by the Niners would increase interest in their Nov. 20 game with the Los Angeles Rams at Candlestick Park.

Free safety Ralph McGill of the Niners sprained a knee against Atlanta and is "questionable" for the New Orleans contest.

If he cannot start, Eddie Lewis, a second-year man, will take over the job. Veteran strong safety Mel Phillips has a hip pointer and is listed as "probable" for Sunday's game.

Meyer said, "New Orleans has been struggling like us, but the Saints are an explosive team that can amaze they have lost and you can see they put points on the board."

NorCal race set

ROCKLIN — Both the men's and women's teams of Chabot College will be competing in the Northern California Community College championships here tomorrow.

The Gladiators qualified at last week's Golden Gate Conference meet at this same site. None of the Gladiator runners were among the top few finishers, however.

Runners to be aware of in this weekend's meet are

Paul Mello of San Mateo, Tim Holmes of Modesto, Nick Brewer of American River, Joaquin Leano of Porterville, Frank Dauncy of Lassen, Dan Navarro of Sierra, Mike Timmerman of Marin in the men's division.

In the women's division, unbeaten Connie Hester of Fresno, Sheila O'Donnell of Cuesta, Kim Fischer of Sierra, Sue Munday of San Jose, and Sue Miller of Cabrillo will be tough.

Chabot gridgers face CCSF

HAYWARD — Chabot College's football team hopes to stay in a tie for first place in the Golden Gate Conference race when it hosts City College of San Francisco at 7:30 tonight.

The Gladiators, who nipped San Jose on a last-second field goal by ex-Livermore High kicker Charlie Bockover last Saturday, are tied with San Mateo and Laney for the top spot, each team posting a 4-2 mark.

City College of San Francisco, 3-3, is coming off a 22-0 victory over winless West Valley College.

The contest will match the GGC's third and fifth-ranked defensive clubs. CCSF is rated third, having allowed 249.1 yards a game. Chabot has given up 280.8. The Rams are particularly rough against the pass, giving up just 602 yards. Former Balboa High School star Rick Bussey leads the CCSF pass defense with four interceptions for 25 yards.

However, the Rams are ranked last in total offense in the conference. San Francisco has gained 249.8 yards a contest. The Rams have picked up just 660 yards passing in eight games. Bill O'Leary started the season as the first-string quarterback but an injury forced him to the sidelines and another ex-Balboa star, David Hill, has taken over the reins. Hill is a fair passer but makes up for it with some fine running ability. He ran 66 yards against West Valley last week.

Danny Lei is the top Ram rusher with 321 yards in 55 carries and three touchdowns.

Chabot is ranked seventh in offense. Quarterback Ron Jones has completed 64 of 135 passes for 656 yards and six touchdowns while having nine intercepted.

Jeff Evans is the Gladiators' leading receiver with 30 receptions for 438 yards and four touchdowns. Dave Fernandez has added 29 catches for 493 yards and five scores.

Former Amador Valley High quarterback John Sevo leads the GGC in punting with a 40.0 average. Evans is third in the conference in purpose running with 506 yards in kickoff and punt returns added to his receiving stats.

Bockover, who also had the deciding field goal against Foothill two weeks ago, is fifth in the conference with four field goals and 12 of 15 extra point attempts converted.

Courier: New Light Truck

DEARBORN, Mich. — The 1978 Ford trucks range from the versatile lightweight Courier to the new heavy-duty CL-9000 linehaul diesel tractor.

Courier, with its optional "soft-ride" package, weighs in at 3,750 pounds gross vehicle weight (GVW), while the CL-900 has an optional GVW of 35,000 pounds.

In addition to Courier, Ford light trucks include F-Series pickups, Econoline Vans and the all-new Bronco. In the medium and heavy weight classes, Ford offers an almost endless number of models which can be adopted to virtually all rural and urban hauling needs.

Ford's pickup truck, the company's best-selling vehicle, will have a number of appearance changes and engineering improvements for 1978. Four-wheel-drive has been expanded to include the SuperCab pickup trucks and the newest utility vehicle is the family-sized Bronco 4 by 4.

Sporty, "Free Wheeling" option packages are available on most light trucks.

Ford's response to the "mini-truck" market has a new grille with parking turn signal lights incorporated into the grille instead of the bumper. The styling of the imported truck is "Americanized," and with the optional five-speed manual transmission, gas mileage is excellent. Courier is available in six standard colors and three optional glamour paints. To further dress up the vehicle, there is the optional "Free Wheeling" trim package. The standard engine is a 1.8-liter - overhead - cam four - cylinder. A 2.3-liter engine is optional.

The sleekly styled Ranchero has refinements designed to heighten its car-like luxury and tough pickup utility. Front-end styling retains the clean, unified appearance of the argent and black cross-hatch grille framed in bright metal moldings and flanked by vertically stacked dual rectangular headlights.

The profile of the Ranchero imparts an impression of lowness because of its straight beltline and the smooth flowing contours, thin roof and ventless curved door glass of the cab greenhouse.

The Ranchero GT model has a bold tape stripe treatment that includes multiple tape stripes along the lower body, and a narrow - wide - narrow stripe that originates at the rear roof pillar and sweeps down and back along the top of the pickup box and terminates at the rear with large GT letters.

Simulated woodgrain treatment on the bodysides and tailgate identifies the luxurious Ranchero Squire model. A new Brougham Decor Group option in 1978 includes a six-way power split-bench seat. Ranchero is powered by a standard 5.0-liter engine. Power front disc rear drum brakes and 14 power steering are standard for 1978.

Refinements and new options highlight the 1978 Econoline Vans and Club Wagons. Additional plant capacity will increase availability by 100,000 units annually to meet the soaring demand.

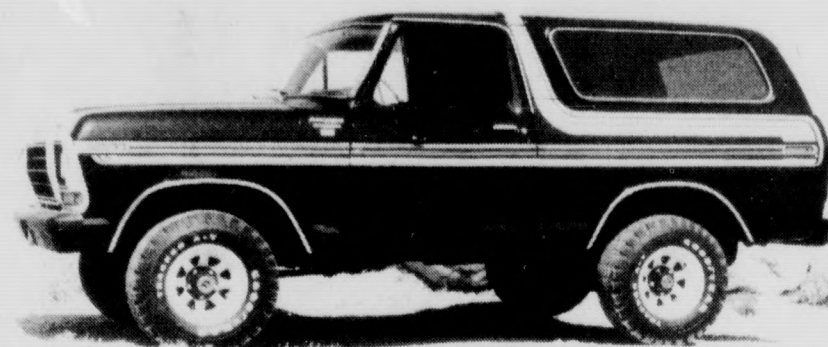

New product features are highlighted by an optional four-speed overdrive manual transmission, more efficient torque converters on the optional Cruise - O - Matic transmission, and a modified steering column with added car-type features.

New options include a tilt steering wheel, sporty 10-hole forged aluminum wheels, white styled-steel wheels, a locking inside hood release, three radios, a chrome-plated rear step-bumper, and two-tone paint schemes.

To help cut operating costs, scheduled engine and chassis maintenance intervals have been extended to 10,000 miles or 10 months for 1978 E-100 Econolines with 4.9-liter engines and GVW ratings of under 6,000 pounds. A sporty new Cruising Van scheme includes a choice of two, three-color tape-stripe treatments and a blackout grille.

The popular Ford pickup truck enters 1978 with a freshly styled front appearance, new SuperCab 4x4 models, powertrain refinements and a host of new comfort and convenience options.

A new optional Ranger Lariat luxury package includes two-tone paint with surround moldings,

The new four-wheel drive Ford Bronco combines ruggedness, appearance and comfort into its new sports-and-utility character. Ford engineers have designed a seating package for six adults, making it a family sized outdoor recreation vehicle.

special interior trim as well as additional dress-up and comfort items for the exterior and interior.

"Free Wheeling" option packages span the lineup, and one of the option packages includes a GT bar, styled-steel wheels and a spare-tire lock with an under-frame tire carrier. New front-end styling resembles the rugged, tough truck look of Ford's larger trucks. The grille features a one-piece cross-hatch insert surrounded with a bright molding.

Rectangular headlights flank the grille on all models except the base Custom models which use conventional round headlights. A chrome front bumper is contoured to harmonize with the grille appearance.

Color-keyed interior trim and paint provide a pleasing unified interior appearance. A new snow-plow preparation package will be offered in 1978 on the F-250 4x4 and the SuperCab. A heavy-duty suspension and electrical system has been engineered to meet the unique demands of snow-plow operators.

The popular F-100 150 pickups have a new optional handling package that includes heavy-duty suspension components.

Youth and sport-oriented options include simulated leather-wrapped steering wheel, a urethane-padded sport steering wheel, a black GT bar and raised white letter radial tires. Optional radios include an AM digital clock radio, and a special 40-channel CB unit available later in the model year.

The 1978 Bronco is built on a 104-inch wheelbase and is 12 inches longer than its 11-year-old predecessor. It combines ruggedness, appearance and comfort in its new sports and utility character.

The larger 4x4 package enabled Ford engineers to design a seating package for six adults (when equipped with optional seats). Bronco is built and equipped for unlabored expressway cruising as well as lively off-road climbing. The standard powertrain is a 5.8-liter V-8 engine with a four-speed manual transmission and part-time four-wheel-drive that employs a two-speed transfer case and free-running, manual-locking front hubs.

Separate body-on-frame construction is used in the Bronco. The truck-type partial box section frame has big side members to help support the body in hard use.

The new Ford Courier is a lightweight truck with an optional "soft-ride" package.

Horizon: Shoppers chose it

Gas prices up a bit

Gasoline prices in central and northern California and Nevada rose slightly during October, according to the most recent survey of the California State Automobile Association (AAA).

The greatest increase over the previous month appeared at pumps dispensing regular grades, where the average price of a gallon of nationally or regionally advertised brands is up four-tenths of a cent. Regular grades are currently selling on the average for 67.6 cents at full service outlets and 62.2 cents at "gas only" and self-service stations.

Prices for premium grade gasoline jumped two-tenths of a cent, compared with prices a month ago, and now sell on the average for 71.9 cents at full-service stations and 68.4 cents at "gas only" pumps.

Clear (no lead) prices rose an average of a tenth of a cent, with current prices about 70.4 cent at full service outlets and 66.6 cents at "mini" service islands.

Compared to the same period a year ago, regular grades increased an average of 2½ cents, premium grades are up slightly more than 3 cents, and clear (no lead) advanced 2 cents.

Price variances between dealerships of up to 10 cents a gallon continue to be the rule in the surveyed area, while lesser-known brands, those not regionally or nationally advertised, frequently sell at prices from 5 to 10 cents less than the more familiar trade names.

Diesel automotive fuel continues to be available at between 55 and 65 cents a gallon, while LPG (liquid propane gas) is selling at from 48 to 58 cents a gallon.

Highest prices were again noted in the more rural and remote areas, while for the most part, lowest pump readings were located in the larger communities and metropolitan areas.

Plymouth's Horizon will appear in showrooms next January

The name "Horizon" was chosen for Plymouth's new efficiency-size, American built car by shoppers in Atlanta, Los Angeles, Milwaukee, and Peoria.

Two hundred men and women, who were interviewed in shopping centers in those cities, selected the name as most suitable for a small car designed to provide out-standing handling characteristics on the open road.

"To me, 'Horizon' suggests great distance — a car that's really good for driving great distances," said a woman in Peoria.

"The name makes me think of exploring new ground, and if this car handles on the freeway the way they say, that's exactly what it will be doing," said a man in Los Angeles.

The interviews were conducted in August, 1976, as Plymouth sought reactions to a list of names for the new front-wheel drive, four-passenger, four-door hatchback which will go on sale early in 1978. All were drivers or prospective buyers of small cars.

The "fit" of a name to a car is important to a manufacturer. A name suggesting the plodding performance of Sherman tank, for instance, would be inappropriate for a car that is designed to be fun to drive.

The name "Horizon" did not just come out of the blue. Research had shown that many prospective buyers of new cars, although favorably disposed towards the economy aspects of smaller cars, rejected them from serious consideration on the belief, or experience, that they are inadequate for highway driving because of their instability and "light" feel.

After extensive testing — 84 prototype Horizons were built and accumulated over six million test miles — it became apparent that the new design has a higher level of stability at highway speeds under crosswind conditions than did existing small cars which were tested.

The interviews with shoppers revealed that the name "Horizon" could be more easily related to a car with these handling characteristics than could other suggested names. Several dozen name candidates were tested with prospective small car buyers, and found "Horizon" to be the most appropriate name.

Promotion at Chrysler

Robert B. McCurry, Group Vice President — U.S. Automotive Sales, announced today the appointment of Peter A. Dow as director of advertising and merchandising for Chrysler Corporation.

In this newly created job, Dow directs all phases of automotive advertising and merchandising for the United States, and will provide functional direction and services, as required, to international and non-automotive groups.

Dow was formerly director of advertising, and advertising manager, for Chrysler-Plymouth. Prior to joining Chrysler, Dow was with Young and Rubicam, (on Chrysler-Plymouth), and with Campbell-Ewald on Chevrolet. He was a lieutenant in the Navy and served as an intelligence officer.

Dow, born in Detroit on October 7, 1933, won scholarships at Lawrenceville School and Rugby School in England. He graduated from the University of Michigan where he was a 3-letter man on the swimming team.

Dow is a former president of the Adcraft Club of Detroit, and is active in a wide variety of community activities. Dow and his wife, Jane (Ottaway), live in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Frank E. Hoag succeeds

Dow as director of U.S. Automotive Advertising. He is responsible for all Chrysler, Dodge, Plymouth, truck and recreational vehicle advertising programs.

Hoag, formerly advertising manager — Dodge Cars and Trucks, came to Chrysler in 1976 from Batten, Barton, Durstine and Osborn (BBDO) where he was supervisor on the Dodge and Chrysler TV network accounts. Earlier, Hoag was a vice president and senior account supervisor at Campbell-Ewald on the Chevrolet car account.

A native of Chicago, Hoag was born July 28, 1942. He graduated from T. L. Handy High School in Bay City, and holds B.A. and M.A. degrees from Michigan State University in radio and television. He served as a captain in the Army in Europe.

He and his wife, Dorothy (Ellis), live in Bloomfield Hills.

William A. Hammond is appointed manager-Advertising and Merchandising services. He is responsible for corporate advertising coordination and services, parts aftermarket, fleet and leasing advertising and merchandising activities.

Hammond has served as corporate and Plymouth sales promotion manager, and as PIHammond has served as corporate and Plymouth salesmouth advertising manager. Earlier, he was on the advertising staff at Lincoln-Mercury and worked media director for Grant Advertising, and was on the media staff at Brooke, Smith, French and Dorrance.

He and his wife, Kay (MacDonald), live in Orchard Lake.

Raymond R. Schneider is appointed manager-Media and Budget Analysis. Arnold Thomson continues as manager - Chrysler-Plymouth Advertising and Richard S. Cook continues as manager - International Advertising and Merchandising. A new position, director — U.S. Automotive Merchandising, and, Hoag's old position, manager-Dodge Car and Truck Advertising, will be filled shortly.

CHELSEA, Mich. (AP) — Seasoned auto test drivers, used to dodging craters and scaling hills, are running into a different challenge at Chrysler's Chelsea Proving Grounds — deer and deer hunters.

Nelson Rooke, president of United Auto Workers Local 1284, said Wednesday that about 25 of the 250 drivers hit deer during the last year on the 4,000-acre rolling, wooded testing ground which lies in a lightly populated farm region about 55 miles west of Detroit.

Rooke, a test driver himself, said his worst experience was "once when one (deer) brushed the side of the car. It came running along parallel to me. The whole thing happened so fast that I didn't really get scared until it was all over."

There have been no major injuries to drivers, but one driver got glass in his eyes when his windshield shattered, Rooke said.

He said the danger has increased with the No. 3 automaker's recent switch to smaller, more gas-efficient cars.

"You hit a 200-pound deer while you're going 70 or 80 miles an hour in a small car and you get a lot different result than in a two-ton older car," Rooke said. "The new cars can flip over or the deer lands inside with the driver."

The grounds are surrounded by 11 miles of chain-link fence with a barbed-wire rim, but Rooke said the union wants Chrysler to add several feet to the existing fence, which ranges from 7 to 11 feet high, patch holes in it and extend it over creeks and streams that run through the proving grounds.

"We want the shooting stopped until we get the fence," Rooke said Wednesday. "I know it's impossible to keep them all out, but we have to cut down the number of deer and at least reduce the hazard."

Because there are a lot of deer, Chrysler has a special state permit allowing off-season hunting on the property by two plant guards late Sunday nights, when there is little testing going on.

The drivers say the gunfire is not limited to those hours.

"We have people driving at night, and we just don't buy all this shooting," said driver Paul Phelan.
